TROUBLE OVER A

Court of Common Pleas Took a Recess While Witness Was Examined by Doctors-Not Required to Attend Court.

At New London Monday, the trial of the suit of Henry O. Hawthorne is preeman Rogers, in the court of common pleas, was halted by an argument over the claim of attorneys for the plaintiff that the deposition of Mrs. Martha Brown should not be accepted as she was well enough to appear in court. Recess was taken while two physicians made examination of Mrs. Brown.

The trial of the suit was started on Monday morning. Toward the end of the morning session the deposition was introduced. Attorneys Daniel M. Cronin and William T. Connor, counsel for Hawthorne, objected to acceptance of the deposition, and declared that Mrs. Brown could appear in court, if she wished to.

Judge Charles B. Waller ordered a morning the right to object to any part of it.

Mrs. Brown's connection with the case comes from a conversation between her and Mr. Hawthorne when the called at her home in Main street or business. She took him to task for not providing properly for his wife, and Hawthorne is alleged to have said that he gave her money and the training the right to object to any part of it.

Mrs. Brown's connection with the court in a carriage if necessary.

Judge Waller said that he thought to court in a carriage if necessary.

Judge Waller said that he thought unless there was a very good reason for compelling Mrs. Brown's attendance that he would not issue a sub-poena for her and he jectided finally not to do so and ruled that the deposition could be admitted, counsel for the morning the right to object to any part of it.

Mrs. Charles E. Wheeler. Mrs. Lucy Standish Wheeler, wife of Charles Emerson Wheeler, died Sat-irday at her home at 12 Summer urday at her home at 12 Summer street, New London. Mrs. Wheeler, who was 88 years, suffered from the effects of a fall sustained in her kitchen on November 26. At that time it was expected she would recover from the injuries, which seemed not to be serious.

Had Mrs. Wheeler lived until December 23, she would not only have been ber 23, she would not only have been 89 years old, but would have witnessed the sixty-second anniversary of her marriage. Singularly, her husband's birthday is the same day. Mrs. Wheeler's maiden rame was Standish, She was born in Bozrah, the daughter of Erastus and Sarah (Giddings) Standish. Her descendancy is traced to Miles Standish. Twelve other children of Erastus and Sarah Standish died before Mrs. Wheeler. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler were members of Montauk Avenue Baptist church. They resided in New London 72 years ago, but moved to Jacksonville, Ill., returning to New London in 1869. Mr. Wheeler has been a carpenter most of his life. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, Lubin G. Wheeler of Decatur, Ill., died a few months ago. There are two other sons. Charles A. of Seattle and Edwin C. of Fitchville, and a daughter, Mrs. Burtis H, Dunbar of New London.
